

Cellular use aboard aircraft should be limited to email and web access, and not include verbal communication except in an emergency.